KIDS MARKETS - Thursday 19 April 2007
by Lisa Honeewill

If you've got young kids, you'll know all about accumulating toys and clothes.

Well rather than throw them out, a lot of parents are now selling them second hand. A great new way to do that is at a special baby and kids market.

There's one held at Nudgee College at Boondall every couple of months.

It's co-ordinated through the website <http://www.babykidsmarket.com.au>. If you want to sell items there you can book a stall on the website.

The cost is forty dollars. The next market is on Sunday, April 29 at St Joseph's Nudgee College, 21.99 Sandgate Road, Boondall.

Admission is $3 - kids are free
